Seebad Enge

Warm up with an hour of yoga at this outdoor swimming area or finish off your run with a cooling dip. In the evening, the baths become a cute outdoor bar.

Sechseläutenplatz

In Zurich's largest square, runners cross elegant quartzite paving stones while enjoying views of the opera house.

Pavillon Le Corbusier

Opened in 1967, the Pavillon was Le Corbusier's final design to be built. This architectural gem is worth a visit, and not just for fans of architecture and design.

Bürkliplatz

Bürkliplatz is not just a dock, it's also a space for markets, art and events, with views across Lake Zurich to the Alps.

Utoquai lakeside path

Lined with trees, the pretty Utoquai path is equally popular among runners, cyclists and those simply going for a stroll. It links Bellevue with the Chinese Garden.

Chinese Garden

This run ends in the Chinese Garden, a meditative and relaxing area. Zurich's Chinese Garden is one of the top temple gardens outside China.
